Having made various improvements, this institute is now prepared to receive an additional number of patients; and from Dr. Weder's well-known skill and practical experience in Europe, (acquired under Vincenz Preissuitz, the founder of the Hydropathic system), and for several years past in this country, and particularly in the city of Philadelphia, (where he has had many patients.) the Managers believe the afflicted will find him an able and an attentive physician.

The domestic department being under the charge of a ntive physician. ne domestic department being under the charge of a yard and Matron, will enable the Doctor to devote to the patients whatever time may be necessary.

Application for admission to be made to SAMUEL WEBB. Secretary

Office No. 58 South Fourth street, residence No. 16 Logan square, Philadelphia.

General Description of the Parkeville Hydropathic Institute The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred feet, with a semicircu-lar grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms. The grounds around the house are tastefully laid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of walks and planted with trees, sincus, accountaining four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for "packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant, stands a similar cottage, used by the ladies for similar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hundred feet, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the laundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

weil as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

THE WATER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounded by a large cedar reservoir containing five hundred barrels, brought from a never-failing spring of pure cold water in the side of the bill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of cast iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the water-works is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream failing from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Adjoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c.; the rising douche (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

There are many other appliances, which can be botter understood by a personal examination.

SEARS' PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS SEARS PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan.—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible men as agents, who are well known in their own counties, towns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the wholesale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good sale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above volumes; and all postmasters, clergymen, book pediars, and newspaper agents, are respectfully requested to act as our agents. A handsome remuneration allowed to all who engage in their sale. For particulars address, post paid,

AMERICAN TELEGRAPH

THE RITCHIE PRESENTATION.—This ceremony took place at the residence of Mr. Retchie, in ment there. An extract from a letter from this city, on Saturday evening last. We regret that it was not in our power to accept the invitation kindly extended to us to be present. We avail ourselves of the report of our neighbor of the Republic.

his friends in the Union office, who have had the best opportunity to appreciate his virtues and his worth." When he retired from the editorial chair, the employees of that establishment tendered him the compliment of a dinner, which he respectfully declined. A more enduring token of their esteem was, in consequence, prepared, in the form of a splendid pitcher, costing more than two hundred dollars.

Upwards of sixty persons witnessed its presentation, the larger portion of them connected with the typographical profession. In addition to other invited guests were the President of the United States; Mr. Crittenden, the Attorney General; Commodore Morris; Mr. De Leon. of the "Southern Press;" Major Donelson, of the "Union;" W. W. Corcoran, Matthew St. Clair Clarke, and Mr. Pendleton, of Virginia, an old friend of Mr. Ritchie. The members of the last-named gentleman's family were likewise in attendance.

Mr. McNerhany was the organ of the donors on this occasion; and in the course of his remarks-happily delivered and abounding in eloquence-he alluded to Mr. Ritchie's devotion to the American Union; to the long period, nearly half a century, during which he had occupied the editorial chair; and to the active part which he had taken in the stirring political events of the country; and adverted to his character as a man and as an employer. A deserved tribute was paid to the press, as a great propelling power of civilization, freedom, and of the spirit of progress. And, in conclusion, me to solicit your acceptance of this memento of our regard. Though the gift be humble, I am sure it will be none the less treasured by you on that account. Perhaps when you gaze upon it in the quiet of retirement it may awaken some pleasing recollections, while 'Fond memory brings the light Of other days around you.

And with this grateful offering, sir, bear with you to your beloved home the earnest prayer of each and all of us, that, surrounded those who are dearest to you, contentment and happiness may be yours, and that the evening of your life, undimmed by even a passing cloud of adversity, may pass serenely and pleasantly away."

Mr. RITCHIE, in accepting the present, tendered his warmest thanks for the high respect expressed for him by those with whom he had had daily, and he might say nightly, intercourse, while they were associated-he as editor and they as employees in the Union printing establishment. The gift, he said, was the more acceptable from the fact that some of those who contributed towards its preparation belonged to the party opposed to him in political opinions; and he expressed the sentiment that he "would work which will doubtless be full of partialities the party opposed to him in political opinions; and he expressed the sentiment that he "would to be, it would be less than justice in us to deny him these great merits. We expect from him a work which will doubtless be full of partialities." rather be esteemed as a man than admired as a politician." As to his future destiny, that depended upon Congress. Claiming to be an older but which will be a valuable historical record pended upon Congress. Claiming to be an older man than any other present-but he had sometimes estimated age rather by temperament than by years-he took occasion to relate a portion of his long experience, political and social, which was listened to with marked attention.

The ceremony of presentation occupied a east an hour, and at the termination of it the President of the United States retired.

The gentlemen were invited into an adjoining oom, where a plentiful supply of good things awaited them. Messrs. Ritchie, Donelson, Crittenden, and Matthew St. Clair Clarke, were severally toasted, and they briefly responded to the compliments. The best possible feeling was prevalent, and there were many bright flashes are quite sure you can give them what you of wit. The company separated before ten promise o'clock, delighted with the evening's entertainments.

The Bath Tribune says: "It has long been the opinion of those best qualified to judge, that the geological formation of the northern region of the State indicated the presence of gold, and that the indications were stronger on the Canada side than on the American side of the line. One statement, from a pretty reliable source, and which we have not yet seen in print, is, that for the year and a half which the English government have been employed in mining, and by all others who have been engaged in that business, there has been about ten thousand dollars obtained, and the average of success for each man cannot be safely estimated at more than one dollar per COLONEL BENTON. - This distinguished ex-Senator is about to undertake a literary labor worthy of his remarkable career, and equal to the scholarship and ability with which his publie life has been singularly illustrated.

Few of our public men are better fitted for this laborious and important undertaking than he who has engaged to devote his time and talents to it. Mr. Benton's mind is analytical, and, therefore, fortunately well adapted to this particular sort of labor; since, amidst the mass of confused and redundant material before him. it will become necessary, in order to render his book valuable, to select that which will most readily engage public attention, and at the same time furnish useful instruction. The toil which would dishearten ordinary men will be to him a pleasure and pastime, not only for the personal pride which is necessarily attached to of the spirit of progress. And, in conclusion, anything connected with personal history, but Mr. McNerhany said to Mr. Ritchie: "Permit also because he has long schooled himself to a system of study, research, and composition which does not admit of indolence or weariness. However much we have been constrained to differ with Col. Benton on questions of political policy, we have never been among those who joined in an unjust outcry against his patriot-ism, or in the habitual assaults upon his public character. That he is egotistical, every body knows; but that he is able and accomplished also, all must admit who claim any degree of candor. Nor are we disposed to forget his emi-nent services during the pendency of the Ore-gon controversy; when, divesting himself of party prejudices, he rose to the high rank of an elevated and dignified statesman, and, by his laborious and valuable investigations, contributed very materially to restrain a false current of popular opinion, as well as to bring the na-tional mind to a just understanding of the subject, and restore the relations of amity which were so near being interrupted between Great Britain and the United States. There are other great occasions to which we might properly refer, when the same voice and the same arm were raised in behalf of the country, in disregard of all opposing party incitations.

These things entitle him to high consideration, if not to public gratitude; and political opponents as we are, and as we always expect notwithstanding .- Phila. North American.

RULES FOR HOME EDUCATION .- The following rules we commend to all our patrons and friends for their excellence, brevity, and practical utility. They are worthy of being printed in letters of gold, and being placed in a conspicu-ous position in every household. It is lamentable to contemplate the mischief, misery, and ruin which are the legitimate fruit of deficiencies which are pointed out in the rules to which we have referred. Let every parent and guardian read, ponder, and inwardly digest: 1. From your children's earliest infancy, inculcate the necessity of instant obedience. 2. Unite firmness with gentleness. Let your children understand that you mean exactly what

If these rules were reduced to practice, daily practice, by parents and guardians, how much misery would be prevented-how many in danger of ruin would be saved, and how largely would the happiness of a thousand domestic circles be augmented! INTRIGUE AND ASSASSINATION .- The following singular story of intrigue and crime is contained in a letter from Madrid to the London Times :

An awfully tragic event occurred here within these few days. A general officer is supposed to have detected his better half in an amorous to have detected his better half in an amorous intrigue with a reverend gentleman holding a high clerical appointment, who, on finding himself at the point of being run through the body by the husband's sword, fired a pistol at the gallant officer, which, however, missing its aim, had only the effect of further irritating him, and the consequence was that the clergyman was conveyed to his own home in a very dangerous state. The wound proved mortal and he was state. The wound proved mortal, and he was, as customary in these climates, buried within twenty-four hours. Suspicions were immediately after entertained as to the cause of his death, and his body was ordered to be dug up again by the Patriarch's orders. A private in-vestigation was the consequence, but the corpse was once more consigned to the earth by his ex-cellency's directions; considering, no doubt, that it was better for the reputation of the church not to stir in the matter. The writer, in a subsequent communication. adds: "The particulars connected with the mysterious murder of the high churchman men-tioned in my previous communication are be-coming more public. The perpetrator of the crime is said not to be the supposed general officer, but an ex-Minister of the Crown as well as an ex-Ambassador, whose long-cherished feeling of revenge for wrongs formerly experienced at the hands of the Pope's Nuncio, who crossed his love at a certain court, prompted him to be ever on the alert in respect to gentlemen of that cloth visiting his house. The mur-derous weapon was not a sword but a dagger. M. Auricles, one of the district magistrates, has commenced preliminary proceedings, but meets with obstinate resistance to the investigation of the body on the part of the clerical authorities, of which he has verbally complained to the court of the audiencia. The murdered clergyman was a very near and dear relative of the highest church dignitary in Spain! The murhighest church dignitary in Spain! The mur-derer is still to be seen driving about in his carriage. The Pastoral Convention of Orthodox Congregational Ministers of New Hampshire, at their recent meeting, having been requested to take action on the subject of the Fugitive Slave law, voted to lay the question on the table "for thought and deliberation for one year, then to be made the order of the day immediately after the public exercises in the afternoon."

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION IN NORTH CAROLINA .-This ecclesiastical body met in St. John's church, in Fayetteville, on Wednesday, the 28th ultimo. The Bishop of the Diocese, and twenty-eight clergymen, with forty-five lay delegates, representing twenty-four parishes, were present. This attendance was much more full than has ever before been in the diocese. This was caused by the troubles which have occurred within the last three years in regard to an alleged Romish tendency in the teachings and practices of the Bishop and some of the clergy—chiefly or alto-gether those brought here from other States. The Bishop made to the Convention a full and most emphatic retraction of all those offensive doctrines and practices, which he attributes mainly to violent diseases, which prostrated his mental and physical system. The discussions in the Convention were earnest, interesting, and sometimes excited. A satisfactory arrangement of all difficulties was finally perfected and unanimously agreed to under circumstances of impressive solemnity. The Convention adjourned on Monday night last.

Some foresee a civil war among the different political parties; some a revolution and terrible slaughter by the Red Republicans, that social democratic ideas may triumph; and not a few are afraid of a general European war, in which either the independence of the people, or despotism, must triumph all over Europe. "In the United States, on the contrary, every thing goes on in the deepest calm and in per-fect tranquility. The different political parties are naming their candidates for the Presidency; and no disorder, no revolution, no bloodshed, is to be feared for our great nation and free people. What a difference!

The Richmond Whig says there are parts of Virginia where a dialect lingers which carries one back to the English of Queen Elizabeth's day, and is more Shakspearean than any other yet spoken on our continent. This is owing to the circumstance that it was derived from an emigration which preceded the great change of the language in the time of Queen Anne. "Our very pronunciation of whar and thar, and all that," says the Whig, "at which people laugh as merely Virginian, is in reality only Old English; as may be easily seen, if you consider that it is genuine lowland Scotch; which is unquestionably only an English still remoter than hakspeare's time."

BLOOMERISM IN THE MILLS .- We are told that the agent of one of the corporations in this city has offered to furnish a handsome dinner for all the girls employed in the same, who, on or before the approaching Fourth of July, shall adopt the Bloomer costume. This is a good movement. Several of the girls in the mills have already adopted it, and it is regarded as not only a very becoming, but an extremely convenient and useful dress for them.
